TIBET ALMOND STICK

The Tibet Almond Stick is a tightly rolled cotton stick, soaked in a secret family formula. It is used to efface surface scratches from wood surfaces. It comes in only one size and is colorless when rubbed on a scratch. If it is kept covered when not in use, it should last for years!

The Almond stick is very simple to use. Just open up the can, and remove the stick. Unwrap the blue wrapper and rub either end on the scratch. The scratch will disappear "Quick As A Wink." There is no need to peel the label, or cut the stick. The liquid will continue to flow to the end of the stick until it is gone.

This unique product originated in 1908 in a small factory in Chicago Illinois. Great Grandpa Reed set out to produce a product that would have the same effect on a surface scratch as the meat of an almond. He knew that it was not always convenient to have almonds on hand, so he created a product that would blend the scratched area with the surrounding finish, just as an almond would do if rubbed on a scratch.

Thus the Amazing "Tibet Almond Stick". At first, it was sold only for industrial use, such as moving companies. Eventually it worked its way into furniture stores, hardware stores, mail order catalogs and other home improvement stores.

Today, the "Tibet Almond Stick" is manufactured in a factory in Addison, Illinois, and shipped all over the world. We take pride in our family business, as it has been handed down with the fourth generation now doing the production work. Each and every almond stick is checked by hand to assure that our customers receive nothing less than a perfect product.
